Dear Valued Customer,

We recently communicated pricing actions in response to ongoing global economic pressures affecting the chemical markets. Market conditions continue to evolve rapidly, and recent force majeure declarations from chemical manufacturers have further impacted the availability and cost of materials within the United States.

Our H.B. Fuller supply chain team is actively managing these challenges through daily actions to maintain reliable supply to our customers during the peak roofing season. To ensure continuity of this critical supply, we must implement an additional immediate adjustment.

Effective for all Urethane Adhesive orders shipping on or after May 1st, a 7% surcharge will be applied.

The war in the Middle East will cause ongoing supply and cost disruption. For every one week of conflict, there will be 4-6 weeks of supply chain impact. We are now many weeks into this. We will continue to closely monitor chemical supply conditions with the objective of securing sufficient materials for the roofing season. In addition, we will watch incoming demand to identify and manage any unusual spikes relative to historical purchasing patterns.

Thank you for your understanding and for your continued partnership.

Sincerely,
